

Social Justice in Clinical Practice: A Liberation Health Framework for Social Work

From Dawn Belkin Martinez
*ebooks | Download PDF | ePub | DOC | audiobook

Download

Read Online

#227599 in Books Dawn Belkin Martinez 2014-03-09 2014-03-04Original language:EnglishPDF # 1 9.21 x .50 x 6.141, .92 #File Name: 0415698960218 pagesSocial Justice in Clinical Practice | File size: 55.Mb

From Dawn Belkin Martinez : Social Justice in Clinical Practice: A Liberation Health Framework for Social Work before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Social Justice in Clinical Practice: A Liberation Health Framework for Social Work:

0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. I will be applying this frameworkBy John TiedemannI will definitely work to incorporate liberation health practices in my work with multi-marginalized clients. The case studies provided great examples of how to use these principles in working with a diverse client base. 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. A Fantastic Textbook! By Neil Highly recommend! This book will assist social workers in incorporating social justice principles into their clinical work. Strong analysis of different populations and the issues they each face. 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Terrific Anthology! By STEVE Excellent articles discussing how social workers are actually thinking about and practicing the Liberation Health and Social Justice viewpoint with clients in a variety of clinical situations.

Social work theory and ethics places social justice at its core and recognises that many clients from oppressed and marginalized communities frequently suffer greater forms and degrees of physical and mental illness. However, social justice work has all too often been conceptualized as a macro intervention, separate and distinct from clinical practice. This practical text is designed to help social workers intervene around the impact of socio-political factors with their clients and integrate social justice into their clinical work. Based on past radical traditions, it introduces and applies a liberation health framework which merges clinical and macro work into a singular, unified way of working with individuals, families, and communities. Opening with a chapter on the theory and historical roots of liberation social work practice, each subsequent chapter goes on to look at a particular population group or individual case study, including: LGBT communities Mental health illness Violence Addiction Working with ethnic minorities Health Written by a team of experienced lecturers and practitioners, Social Justice in Clinical Practice provides a clear, focussed, practice-oriented model of clinical social work for both social work practitioners and students.

"This book, written by a struggling consumer and consummate advocate of great stature and growing vulnerability, is a must read for anyone working in the fields of mental health and addictions or living with mental illness and or addiction." - Andrew Malekoff, Social Work with Groups "This book provides a clear and compelling vision of liberation health practice in social work. While not being prescriptive, it provides tools and a framework for analysis and action. The case presentations are highly effective at demonstrating the use of the triangle in a process of problem formulation that both includes and goes beyond traditional practice. These analyses and the plethora of interventions they inform will likely challenge all but the most cynical of practitioners, expanding readers' sense of what is possible." -- Journal of Sociology Social Welfare About the Author Dawn Belkin Martinez is Lecturer in Clinical Practice at the Boston University School of Social Work, USA and formerly an instructor in psychiatry at Harvard Medical School. She is one of the founding members of the Boston Liberation Health Group and gives presentations locally, nationally, and internationally about her work with immigrant families, liberation health theory and practice, and social justice. Ann Fleck-Henderson is Professor Emerita at Simmons College School of Social Work, USA, and a consultant on intimate violence issues and on social work curriculum and pedagogy.